Does Your Child Know Important Numbers and Skills?

We all rely on our cell phones to “memorize” numbers for us or to tell us the time. If there were an emergency, though, and your child didn’t have their own phone with them, would they know your phone number? Do they know how to leave a voicemail? Do they know their home address? Can they tell time on an analog clock?

Many kids pass through the office each day needing to use the phone or to check in/out. Surprisingly, quite a few have trouble with these things that we take for granted.

If you get a minute, check with your child to see if they can answer yes to the questions mentioned above.
